WEEK 7

October 15th - October 31st

- On the 27th the Perlman Teaching Museum hosted a virtual tour of their latest exhibition, Cover to Cover. Students could appreciate the work from afar with special collections librarian Rebecca Bramlett and Perlman Teaching Museum curator Sara Cluggish.
- Ethical Inquiry at Carleton hosted the lunchtime presentation Anxious, Angry & Afraid: Coping with Humor and Grace in 2020. Students learned about working during COVID from Dr. Renee Crichlow on the 27th.
- The Red Cross Blood Drive was held from the 28th through the 29th. Students could donate blood in this event sponsored by the CCCE.
- On the 28th the college hosted the discussion Election Day 2020: What's Going to Happen?. Students heard from prominent national journalists covering the election, including John Harris '85, founding editor of Politico, Maggie Haberman and Alex Burns from The New York Times, MJ Lee from CNN, and Eugene Daniels from Politico.
- The Gender and Sexuality Center celebrated Halloween on the 30th with a Spooky Queer Game Night. Students had a great time playing games while in costume.
- On the 31st the Gender and Sexuality Center held an edit-a-thon of Wikipedia. Led by Rachel Wexelbaum, students learned how to edit Wikipedia to expand and improve LGBTQ+ content and queer Wikipedia articles.
- Halloween was on the 31st! Students jumped at the chance to have something to celebrate during these times.
