This handbook is intended to provide you with an overview of the Latin American Studies Program. It brings together information about requirements for the Latin American Studies major and concentration, as well as other information about opportunities and resources available to you. We suggest that you browse through the information here. For further information, or to discuss the program with someone, feel free to contact the program director, Silvia López, or any of the faculty in Latin American Studies.

Internships

Latin American Studies students have participated in a variety of internships that complement and contribute to their major or concentration. Internships for Latin American Studies students range from work with international development and human rights organizations like Cultural Survival and the Inter-American Foundation, to work in organizations that provide legal, health, or social services to Spanish-speaking communities in the United States. Although these internships are typically in the United States (not Latin America), they nonetheless provide valuable educational and job-related experience for students. Students are encouraged to consult with the Internship Advisor in the Career Center for further information about these opportunities.

In addition to regular internships like those mentioned above, the Community Internships in Latin America (CLA) program offered by HECUA provides an off-campus study opportunity that is built around student internships. The CILA Program, located in Ecuador, places students in internships with community and non-governmental organizations. The bulk of the student's time is spent working in the community with their organization. This is supplemental with seminars that provide an academic and analytical focus to the internship experience. For more information about CILA, contact the Off-Campus Studies Office.

Career Information

Program faculty are happy to discuss your career plans with you and help you think about your options for graduate schools, jobs, and planning your course of study to meet your career goals. We also receive lots of information from graduate schools and occasionally receive fliers about jobs. We will forward job and internship announcements to you via email. And, of course, you should make full use of the services provided by the Carleton Career Center.

Recommendation Letters

At some point, you will undoubtedly need letters of recommendation from faculty. Whether you are applying for admission to an off-campus study program, a student fellowship, or post-Carleton employment or study, faculty can write better letters in support of your application if they know you and your work, and if they have adequate lead-time. Talk to the faculty member from whom you are requesting a recommendation well in advance of the application deadline. Keep in mind that although faculty may know your work in their class(es), they may not know about all of your other academic and non-academic interests and accomplishments. It is very helpful to have a brief résumé that summarizes your goals and objectives, as well as your employment and educational experience. Include volunteer work, special skills, and any academic (or non-academic) "specialties" that you have developed outside the Program and of which we may not be aware.

Before you graduate, we recommend that you open a file at the Career Center, and ask your faculty referees to put letters on file for you, even if you don't foresee needing recommendations immediately. We frequently receive requests for letters of recommendation from students who have graduated a year or two or even longer-before, and we are happy to oblige. But faculty go on sabbatical, and may not be on campus when you discover that you need a recommendation. It's best to have the letter on file; it can be replaced with a new one, if necessary.

Conferences and Student Fellowship Opportunities

Carleton offers several fellowships, including Independent Research Fellowships, the Class of 1963 Fellowship and the Larson International Fellowships, that support student travel and research. The competition for these fellowships is announced each fall by the Dean of the College, and applications are typically due in early February. Latin American Studies students who wish to undertake independent research in Latin America during the summer are encouraged to consider applying for one of these fellowships. The College also makes available limited funds to support student travel to conferences or for more limited research during winter break. For these funds, students must submit letters of application to the Associate Dean of the College. For more information, see "Student Grant Opportunities" on the Dean of the Colleges web page.
Each February, the Institute of Latin American Studies Student Association (ILASSA), University of Texas, sponsors a national student conference in Latin American Studies. This conference brings together undergraduate and graduate students from throughout the nation to present their work and exchange ideas. The conference provides an excellent opportunity for students to make contacts with others, gain professional experience, and take advantage of the enormous resources of the Institute of Latin American Studies and the Benson Library (one of the leading research libraries in Latin American Studies). Several Carleton students have participated in the conference, and have found it a rewarding and exciting experience. To participate, you must submit an abstract of the paper you propose to present at the conference. The abstract is typically due in late September. For more information, see the ILASSA web page.

From time to time other student conferences or contests are announced. The Program Director will distribute information about these opportunities as it becomes available.

Getting Together

Lectures

Each year the Latin American Studies Program sponsors a series of public lectures that bring prominent scholars and public figures to campus. Students and faculty have the opportunity to meet and interact with these speakers during their campus visit. In addition, we also sponsor colloquia and social events for students and faculty in the program. These events are announced throughout the year. If you have ideas about events or speakers that you would like to see us sponsor, contact the Program director.

Foro Latinoamericano

Each year, the students, faculty and alumni of the Latin American Studies Program convene to share in an academic experience that brings to the foro and to campus a major topic, event, and country of Latin America. Originally designed as a capstone experience for the students of the program, we have expanded the Foro to include our alumni and the program’s entire faculty in order to give it a truly communal sense. The Foro also provides the Carleton community at large with the opportunity to participate in a major event involving contemporary Latin America.

Previous Foros:

2003-2004: Brazil: City of God
2004-2005: Guatemala: Human Rights and Maya Cultural Revitalization in Guatemala

Off-Campus Events
On occasion we organize a van to attend important events relating to Latin America that take place in Minneapolis/St. Paul or other nearby communities. If you are interested in organizing a group to attend one of these events, please contact the Program Director.

Major

Requirements for Major

Students complete a minimum of sixty-six credits in approved courses for the major. Majors must also demonstrate competence in Spanish by completing Spanish 205 or equivalent.

Required Courses (The following core courses are required of all majors):

- HIST 170: Modern Latin America 1810-Present
- LTAM 300: Issues in Latin American Studies
- LTAM 400: Integrative Exercise

In addition, majors are required to complete:

- Two 300-level Latin America-focused courses offered in the Spanish Department
- One 300-level history, or sociology/anthropology, or political science course focused on Latin America
- 30 additional credits of electives from the list below. The 300-level courses in the Spanish department that are required are always taught in the language.

Students are strongly encouraged to complete the non-Spanish 300-level course prior to writing their integrative exercise, and to select a 300-level course in a discipline appropriate to the focus of their anticipated comps topic. Students who complete this requirement with a 300-level history course must take at least one approved sociology and anthropology or political science course as an elective.

Up to 27 credits from work in approved off-campus programs may be counted as electives for the major. Credits in natural science courses taken in Latin America may be applied toward the electives requirement if the director approves. Up to twelve elective credits may be comparative or Latino in focus (Economics 240, 241, Music 141, Religion 227, Sociology/Anthropology 203, 233, 259, 302). No more than four courses (twenty-four credits) in any one discipline may apply to the major.

Monitoring Your Progress as a Latin American Studies Major

66 credits, maximum of 24 in one discipline.
Majors must also demonstrate competence in Spanish by completing Spanish 204 or equivalent.

Required Courses: 36 credits Term

1. __________ Latin Am. 300: Issues in Latin American Studies
2. __________ History 170: Modern Latin America, 1810-present
3. __________ Latin Am. 400: Integrative Exercise

Comps

The comprehensive exercise in Latin American Studies has component the execution of a major, individual research project. The main goal of the comprehensive exercise is to give you the experience of working through the investigation of a topic within the field of Latin American Studies that deeply interests or concerns you, in a way that is both comprehensive and scholarly. Unlike most other projects you will have undertaken, comps is not bound by having to conform to the goals of a specific course nor must it be completed within the confines of a single academic term. Although you work closely with a faculty advisor, comps affords you the opportunity-and responsibility-to conceive your own project, explore its ramifications, and complete the project in a way that both fulfills your own goals and measures up to the academic criteria applicable to the issues and materials with which you are working. The comps project also gives you the opportunity to reflect disciplinary and analytical approaches of our interdisciplinary program. The topic that you choose for your comps project may take many forms: it can be a case study of a particular group, event, or work of literature or art; or it may compare several such groups, events, or works. It may focus on historical or contemporary situations. It may aim at testing specific theories or arguments, or it may advance an original argument or interpretation. Your study may be carried out through library research, original fieldwork, analysis of primary documents, or some combination of those methods.

However, to meet the goals of our interdisciplinary program in Latin American Studies, your project must:

1. deal centrally with Latin American material and demonstrate an in-depth knowledge of the pertinent Latin American context(s);
2. draw upon at least two disciplines in its analysis of the subject of focus; and draw upon sources written in Spanish (or Portuguese) as well as English, and, to the extent possible, utilize material published in Latin America and by Latin Americans.
The product of your research will be a paper of 30-40 pages. As is the case with any academic paper, your compus paper should have a clearly stated and coherently argued thesis. The paper should situate your analysis with in the relevant scholarly literature. That is, it should include a discussion of the scholarly literature dealing with your topic that draws from at least two disciplines, and should make clear how your approach fits into that literature.

The paper will be read and evaluated by at least two Latin American Studies faculty. Your compus project will culminate with a public presentation of your paper in spring term.

Schedule

1. If you are planning a project that involves summer research, or will be off-campus Fall Term of your senior year, you should consult with at least two Latin American Studies faculty before you leave campus. You should submit a preliminary compus proposal before leaving campus in the Spring of your Junior year, and arrange for a faculty member to serve as your advisor for the project. If you are planning original field research, you must also submit a statement of your proposed field research plan to the Carleton Institutional Review Board for approval, allowing ample time for the committee to review your proposal before you leave campus. (See #3)
   - During the first three weeks of Fall Term, senior year, you must discuss your proposed project with at least two Latin American Studies faculty. After discussing the project with these professors, you should arrange for one of them to serve as your advisor for compus. A proposal of at least five pages must be turned in to the Program Director by 4:30 p.m. on Friday of week three. (See "What Is A Proposal?" below) Your proposal will then be reviewed by the Latin American Studies Committee. You will have to submit another proposal if the original one lacks sufficient promise or appears unfeasible.

2. If your project involves research with human subjects—that is, interviews, participant observation, a survey—it MUST be approved by the Carleton Institutional Review Board BEFORE you may begin your research. All research by Carleton faculty and students that involves human subjects, whether utilizing survey research, participant observation, or qualitative interview methods, and whether conducted here at Carleton or elsewhere, must be approved by this ethics oversight board. Further information and guidelines for submitting your project for approval can be obtained from the Dean of the College's web page.

3. In the 8th week of fall term, you should submit a revised proposal and outline of your compus paper to your advisor. Your revised proposal should include a thesis statement and summary of your argument; an outline indicating how you expect the paper to be structured; and a summary of the work you have done so far and the work that remains to be done. You should also include a bibliography listing the major materials you will use in your paper. This revised proposal and outline must be turned in to your advisor by Friday of 8th week.

4. Third week of Winter Term: By Friday of the third week you should turn in a first draft of your compus paper to your advisor. You should meet with your advisor prior to this deadline to discuss goals for this first draft. Your advisor may also set additional goals and interim drafts for you to turn in during winter term.

5. Eighth week of Winter Term: By Monday, at the beginning of eighth week you must submit a complete draft of your compus papers to your advisor.

6. Second week of Spring Term: A copy of your complete, final draft of the compus essay must be submitted to your compus advisor and a second copy to your reader by 4:30 p.m. on the Friday of the 2nd week of spring term. In addition, an electronic version as a word or pdf file must be submitted via attachment to an e-mail or via USB flash drive to the Program Director. Any submission after this time must be accompanied by a formal letter to the Latin American Studies Committee, explaining why your compus is late. If the explanation is unacceptable, the compus will be evaluated the following Fall. No late compus will be considered for Distinction.

7. Sixth week of Spring Term: Comps presentations will be scheduled during the first week of May.
What Is A Proposal?

A comps proposal is simply a brief (5 page) statement outlining of what you intend to study, why it is of interest, and how you intend to go about studying it. In addition to identifying the issue or question that you intend to investigate, your proposal must provide sufficient information to the Latin American Studies Committee to allow us to determine that your plans for comps are feasible and appropriate. In order to accomplish this, your proposal should clearly address the following points:

a. The topic you intend to study and why it interests you.

b. The principal question(s) or issue(s) you want to pose about the topic.

c. The method(s) you intend to use to answer your questions or conduct your analysis. This does not mean saying "I'll read books," or "I'll conduct interviews". Rather, specify as clearly as possible the kinds of information data you will need in order to answer your research question(s) and the approaches you will use in analyzing that information. Your primary analytic methods may be drawn from history, the social sciences, literary criticism-but whichever the case, you must specify where and how you will obtain the pertinent data and what approach you will use in analyzing them.

d. The feasibility of the study. Consider the adequacy of available resources to carry it out and the length of time it will require. If you plan to draw upon library or other resources not available at Carleton (say, major academic libraries near your home, or resources available on off-campus study programs), indicate that, as well.

e. Previous experience and preparation. If pertinent, indicate courses or other experiences that have prepared you to do the kind of data collection or analysis that you have identified as your method in (c). (e.g., if you propose to conduct interviews, indicate what preparation you have for designing and executing such interviews, and/or what assistance you expect to require from your faculty in order to successfully carry out the study.)

f. The two disciplines that your study will draw upon, and how you will articulate these disciplines in the analysis of your topic.

g. The names of at least two faculty with whom you have consulted and the name of one of those who has agreed to serve as your advisor for the project.

A preliminary bibliography of at least ten items that you believe will be most helpful in your research.

Evaluation of Comps

Each comps essay will be read and evaluated by your advisor and second faculty reader. In some cases, such as consideration for Distinction, an additional professor may be asked to read the paper a well. The early deadline for final drafts allows enough leeway for a paper judged inadequate to be revised in time for another evaluation. Alternatively, if the readers judge the comps paper inadequate, they may request that the student write an additional, shorter essay addressing in greater detail specific issues related to the paper. The oral presentations will be scheduled only after the rewritten essay or additional shorter essay has been read and deemed acceptable. Any rewritten essays, additional shorter essays, and orals must be completed by "comps day".

After your comps presentation has been completed, you will be notified of your final grade for comps in a letter from the Program Director. Possible grades for comps are Pass, Pass with Distinction, and Fail. Allow about a week after your orals for notification.
Your fellow students can also be a source of support and assistance throughout comps. Students have found it helpful to form "comps groups," sharing drafts and giving each other feedback. This interchange not only can help you clarify your own thoughts, but can also provide you with a sense of community and an appreciation for the variety and richness of work that your colleagues are engaged in.

off-Campus Study

We strongly encourage students to participate in an off-campus study program in Latin America, if possible. Carleton is a member of two consortia that offer programs in Latin America.

Off-Campus Programs

Associated Colleges of the Midwest (ACM), which sponsors two programs in Costa Rica; and the Higher Education Consortium for Urban Affairs (HECULA), which sponsors a program in Ecuador. Students may also participate in a number of other Latin American study programs that have been approved by the College. Students considering a study-abroad program should consult with their faculty adviser and with the appropriate off-campus study adviser(s) to determine which programs best suit their goals. Programs vary widely both in structure and academic focus. Some programs include significant language instruction. Many programs offer students specially designed courses of their own, but some programs allow students to direct enroll in foreign universities. Many programs emphasize particular substantive themes, such as gender issues, development, social justice, or ecology, to name just a few. Some programs involve homestays other do not. Some provide opportunities for independent field research, while other programs emphasize regular coursework or seminars. To get the most out of your off-campus study, you need to select the program carefully. Consult the OCS Program Gateway website for option and suggestions
