

PERLMAN
TEACHING
MUSEUM

New Exhibition: Being Public / Public Beings, January 18 – February 7, 2021

Welcome back Carls! We hope you had a wonderful first day back in the classroom. This winter, we invite you to visit the Perlman Teaching Museum's newly opened exhibition, *Being Public / Public Beings*, curated by the students of Carleton's Fall 2020 Art and Democracy seminar.

Last term, students of this class, led by Art History professor Ross Elfline, were invited to collectively curate the exhibition as a response to the ideas explored in their course. The exhibition includes artworks by nine contemporary artists, addressing acts of public speech, protest, and national belonging, which are presented in dialogue with the student's own posters and interpretive wall labels.

Radio Show: Being Public / Public Beings on KRLX 88.1 FM

As part of the public program for Being Public / Public Beings, students from the class and student workers from the Perlman Teaching Museum will broadcast a weekly radio show on Thursday nights on KRLX 88.1 FM. Segments will include, student-led audio tours of the exhibition, musical interpretations of artworks, interviews with artists, a live reading group of texts by activist Grace Lee Boggs, and more!

Listen online here on Thursday evenings, 7-9pm on January 21, 28, and February 4, 2021. Also follow our Instagram and Facebook accounts which will release details of the segments in advance of each week.

Artist Talk: Wing Young Huie, Thursday, January 20, 4:30 pm

Join us on Zoom this Thursday, 4:30pm for an artist talk by Twin Cities photographer Wing Young Huie, presented by Carleton's Art and Art History Department and sponsored by The Perlman Teaching Museum and the Christopher U. Light Lectureship.

Wing Young Huie's photographic practice, largely rooted within his home state of Minnesota, focuses on social issues within our local communities. A selection of the artists' celebrated Lake Street USA (1997 – 2000) photographs are included in the museum's current exhibition Being Public / Public Beings. You can also see Wing Young Huie's work displayed in the Boliou Gallery on occasion of his solo exhibition, 4 Decades of Photography by Wing Young Huie, open now through March 1, 2021.
