New Work by Carleton Studio Art Faculty opens this Thursday!

On view January 12 through April 16

The Perlman Teaching Museum proudly presents an exhibition of new work by studio art faculty members Kelly Conneé, Jade Hoyer, Eleanor Jensen, David Lefkowitz, Stephen Mohring, Danny Saathoff, and Xavier Tavera. The museum stages an exhibit such as this periodically so that Carleton students have an opportunity to see their instructors' work at some point during their four years at the college.

Carleton's art department is committed to teaching the traditional hands-on skills of artmaking while encouraging experimentation and an expansive and expanding idea about art and its role in our shared culture. Faculty provide guidance as students develop technical, critical, conceptual, creative, and collaborative skills across many media in the studio and beyond.

At the same time, faculty members maintain their own creative studio practices. The artwork on display in this exhibit reflects these artists' areas of expertise, interest, and experience. Ranging from small handheld objects to large installations, these pieces represent a sample of the varied research of seven individuals the Carleton community is lucky to have teaching and creating amongst us.

Join us for an opening celebration!
Thursday, January 12, 5:00-7:00 pm
Light refreshments will be served

Gallery talks featuring Carleton Studio Art Faculty

Join us in the galleries on select Tuesdays to hear the artists discuss their work:

- January 31, 2023, 12 noon: David Lefkowitz and Xavier Tavera
- February 21, 2023, 12 noon: Stephen Mohring and Jade Hoyer
- April 11, 2023, 12 noon: Eleanor Jensen, Kelly Conneé, and Danny Saathoff

*Portraits by Xavier Tavera

Upcoming Spring Term Exhibition

Join us for our annual celebration of work by graduating studio art majors

On view May 12 - June 9, 2023
Stay tuned for more information!

Connect with us online on Instagram & Facebook