25th REUNION

Class of 93'ers,

It has been 25 years since we graduated and 25 years since the movie Sleepless in Seattle came out. By now you should have received your Bio Books in the mail. Hopefully you are having as much fun thumbing through them as you did your freshmen/froshman year Zoobooks.

(Back in my day, face books were actual books...with faces in them.)

Whether you submitted an entry or not, we want to see the actual in-the-flesh you at reunion. That's right...it's time to get the band back together (and by that I do mean the Pat Travers band.)

Registration for reunion is now LIVE and housing goes fast. The early bird deadline (with its 5% discount) is April 20th, but housing often fills before then, so don't be a procrastinator, especially if you want to get one of the "good dorms." As of 3/15/18, 118 classmates have already registered, and we know that many more will be adding their names to the list. To register, go to go.carleton.edu/reunion or download a paper copy here.

The reunion planning committee has put together a fabulous weekend worth of scheduled events, including a Thursday evening welcome reception and a class dinner on Burton Patio. In addition to all the fun official events we have planned, you should also plan to simply relax with friends, go for a run in the Arb, read/nap on the Bald Spot, stroll downtown Northfield, check out the new buildings on campus or pick up a Frisbee.

The planning committee set a reunion attendance goal of 235. (That is 50% of the class of '93). The current 25th record, set by the Class of '92, is 47.22%, but we know we can take them.

On a completely personal and sentimental note, as I thumbed through my copy of the Bio Book, I was just so happy to "see" each and every one of you. I have talked to many classmates who feel the same way. As Annie Reed said in Sleepless in Seattle, "Now that was when people KNEW how to be in love. They knew it! Time, distance... nothing could separate them because they knew. It was right."

Indeed, the time is right. Let's hang out at reunion. (Our big one.)

— Leah Bassoff and the Class of '93 Reunion Planning Committee

P.S. There was one error that we know of in the Bio Book. Please note, Marcia Franklin actually spent Saturdays at Carleton in the floor lounge doing problem sets with Jenny Wurster and Jennifer Johnson. Now on Saturdays, she can be found at Circus Juventas in St Paul, waiting for one or the other of her kids to complete one of their classes. Sorry about that mis-print, Marcia. So happy you're coming to reunion.

P.P.S. Additionally, please note that Marc Gale's Bio Book entry just might have been written "for him" by some very close and very hilarious friends.
